Haraldr Harald (personal name); Haraldr blátönn - Harald Bluetooth, king of Denmark (958-987 AD); Haraldr harðráði - Harald the Ruthless, Norwegian king (1045-1066); Haraldr hárfagri - Harald Fairhair also Haraldr lúfa - Harald Shaggyhair, Norwegian king who reigned from ca. 860-930; Klakk-Haraldr - Klakk Harald

Vatnagr: Direct translation of Waterfield (Vatn: Water Akr: Field) the surname Waterfield is a English habitational name that originated from Vatierville in Seine-Maritime, France. The name is a combination of the old French personal name Vautier, A regional variation of Gauthier (Modern variant: Walter) and Old French word Ville, which means "settlement". It is likely Norman in Origin.

Transliteration would be Vatterbygð or Vatterborg.

bygð abode, dwelling, settlement (f) borg castle, fortress, stronghold; town; funeral pyre (f)
